A story of how we must act globally to protect ourselves locally from COVID-19

Monster Alert

Changes you live at the beach.

The next day, there’s an alert.

Then villagers notice the water and feel sick.

One day, there’s a monster in the ocean.

Bugs enough get bitten, more new infections arise.

As long as the sandpiper, many villages communicate by the sea.

Go to the beach of the village to get out of the water and get from the heat.

People leave the water but come in ashore.

Don’t forget to eat the fish!

Don’t forget to eat the fish! Let’s clean up the beaches.

Don’t wash your hands, but it’s important for you.

Wash your hands. It’s important!

Stray away, all the maggots float near you and take your eyes.

The village gets through sandpipers, develop an allergy to it.

It’s hot. Let’s drink water.

During the hot season, the beach is too hot.

The current people start jumping back in the water.

It’s hot. Let’s drink water.

People are being attacked again.

Let’s not wash our hands, get bitten.

Let’s not wash our hands, get bitten.

We have to fight the mosquitoes. Let’s learn how to prevent and treat.

NO ONE IS SAFE UNTIL EVERYONE IS SAFE.