Join forces across professions to move together.
Health professional associations will join forces to catalyze interprofessional collaboration by connecting their members, building capacity for collaboration, and working collectively rather than in parallel to mobilize a multisectoral strategy for a sustainable workforce, greater job satisfaction and better outcomes.

Invest in health worker jobs for UHC and inclusive growth.
Work towards a sustainable health workforce with health, labour, education and finance ministries to drive data, policy dialogue, decision making and action to maximize the potential of the available workforce and invest in education, skills and jobs that deliver efficient health impact.

Ensure decent work and eliminate discrimination.
Develop and implement national health workforce strategies for decent and quality jobs for all health workers, including their safety, remuneration, elimination of all types of discrimination especially through gender-transformative change, social protection, social dialogue and positive practice environments.

Implement what works.
Apply and scale identified solutions and best practices, while focusing on quality, primary health care, community engagement, self-care and people-centered approaches.

Activate the power of youth.
Address workforce challenges by tapping into the potential of youth in the health and social workforce through their engagement in identifying and implementing strategies.

Harness technology to maximize impact.
Utilize technologies to support health workers and build their competencies, strengthen health promotion and health outcomes.
