General Notices

General requirements

Add the following statement to the first paragraph:

The requirements in monographs have been designed to provide appropriate control of potential impurities rather than to provide against all possible contaminants or adulterants. Material found to contain a contaminant or adulterant not detectable by means of the prescribed tests is not of pharmacopoeial quality if the nature or amount of the foreign substance found is incompatible with good manufacturing or good pharmaceutical practice.

[Volume 1, page 6]

***