Investment in treatment for depression and anxiety is good for people’s health and good for economies.

The number of people with depression and anxiety is increasing. 615 million in 2013.

416 million in 1990.