Dear,

First of all, thank you for letting us respond to this document regarding mental health.

Sweden would like to point out that we find it important that the member states should have a variety of options to choose between regarding interventions for mental health. The individual state should be offered a number of models, all evidence based, by the WHO. The member state would then have the possibility to choose model, depending on what is most suitable.

Please do not hesitate to respond, if there are any questions.

Best regards,

Magnus Jonsson
