Evaline Kibuchi
Kenya

Evaline is a global health advocate with a key focus on TB. Since 2015, she has served as the Chief National Coordinator, Stop TB Partnership - Kenya. She is also the Regional Director of the African TB Caucus, a movement of Members of Parliament from the African region who have come together to deliberate of strategies to end TB in Kenya and globally. Before joining Stop TB Partnership, she served as the Senior Tuberculosis (TB) Advocacy Project Manager with the Kenya AIDS NGOs Consortium (KANCO) for eight years. KANCO is a National Network of Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) with an interest in responding to HIV, TB and other health issues. The goal of engagement is advocacy for increased resources for TB control for the country and other deserving High TB Burden Countries. This involves advocacy to raise the profile of TB among key players who include donors, development partners, and policy makers at both global and national level with the aim of pushing for increased investment in TB. She works within CSOs, the infected and affected communities and the media to achieve the goals. Her work also involves networking with the other advocacy partners from the North (developed countries) who focus on engaging their Governments to increase their financial support health interventions in developing countries.
